Registration for LifeLine™ Software

Please read the following information, provide the information requested and your licensed copy of LifeLine™ will be provided. Upgrades and supporting information will be available to licensed users, without fee, via mail or downloads from the LifeLine™ website.

Copyright recognition

This software is wholly owned by The LifeLine Group, a US not-for-profit organization. The software and all attendant written materials, graphics and demonstration materials are protected by United States Copyright. You may use the software and materials under this license agreement, but must make appropriate citation and reference to them when you use them. Your signature below represents your agreement to respect the copyright of The LifeLine Group and to recognize the US Copyright Laws in your use of the LifeLine™ software and all attendant documentation.

License provisions

Any interested party may have a license for LifeLine™ software, but they may not provide copies of the software to others, share the software, modify the software or use the code in any way. The software is licensed to persons, not institutions of any kind. Thus, you have a personal responsibility to uphold the license and copyright provisions. See the license agreement for details. If you have questions on license provisions or limitations, copyright provisions or other issues, please contact a LifeLine™ Director for more information.
